Read an offer and seek qualified review

Compare the complete agreement with the proposal, identify missing facts, verify the provider, and involve qualified legal, tax, or financial professionals when appropriate.

The deeper idea

A responsible plan uses cash after essential needs, not optimistic revenue. It includes an early warning point, corrective actions, and a stop rule before cash becomes critical.

Learning objectives

- Explain term sheet using the lesson's governing facts.
- Distinguish agreement from an assumption or promotional summary.
- Show how professional review changes cost, timing, control, responsibility, or risk.
- Complete the offer review checklist using traceable source information.

Vocabulary in action

term sheet	Locate it in source material and state what it measures or governs.
agreement	Use it to make the comparison concrete instead of relying on a label.
professional review	Name who carries responsibility, what triggers it, and which control makes it visible.

Move from information to a responsible next step.

1. Define the exact question

State the purpose, deadline, and consequence of delay. Connect the question to this lesson and its governing evidence.

2. Gather governing evidence

Collect current agreements, statements, official disclosures, operating records, or program instructions. Record the source and date.

3. Apply the vocabulary

Locate term sheet, agreement, and professional review in the real document or process. Translate each into a dollar, date, action, control, or responsibility.

4. Test a difficult case

Change one important assumption - timing, volume, cost, income, access, or support - and explain whether the plan still works.

5. Record the decision

Choose proceed, revise, compare, seek qualified review, or stop. Name the next action, its owner, and the review date.

Applied scenario

A learner must make this decision this month. The learner gathers governing records, locates term sheet, agreement, and professional review, and completes the assignment. The decision pauses if the difficult-case test exposes an obligation or operating risk that cannot be managed.

Offer review checklist

Use the offer-review checklist and pause any decision until material questions are answered in writing.

Purpose: What exact decision does this lesson support?

Evidence: Which source documents prove the facts? Include dates.

Terms: Where do term sheet, agreement, and professional review appear, and what does each change?

Stress-test and decision record

Stress test: Which assumption is most fragile, and what happens if it fails?

Decision record: What is the next action, who owns it, and when will it be reviewed?

My recorded status
☐ Proceed ☐ Revise ☐ Compare ☐ Seek qualified review ☐ Stop

Confirm your understanding.

1. State the central teaching in your own words.

2. How do term sheet and agreement work together?

3. What evidence is strong enough to use?

4. What would make the plan pause?

5. What belongs in the finished assignment?

Compare reasoning, not just wording.

1. State the central teaching in your own words.

A responsible plan uses cash after essential needs, not optimistic revenue. It includes an early warning point, corrective actions, and a stop rule before cash becomes critical.

2. How do term sheet and agreement work together?

Define each, locate both in source material, and explain their combined effect on the decision.

3. What evidence is strong enough to use?

Current, relevant, traceable information from an agreement, statement, official source, operating record, or qualified professional.

4. What would make the plan pause?

A missing governing fact, unsupported claim, unmanageable stress case, or inability to explain the responsibility attached to professional review.

5. What belongs in the finished assignment?

Purpose, sources, term definitions, comparison or calculation, difficult-case result, unanswered questions, responsible owner, and review date.
